

JRC Anthology (2023): Rules and Guidelines

JRC is seeking submissions for our first anthology of local writing! Short story and/or poetry pieces are welcomed on the themes of 'hope', 'empowerment', and 'opportunity'.

We will be collating some of our favourite submissions into a collection, to be available in print copy via Amazon and direct purchase with us.

This charity anthology will be a celebration of recovery, and an opportunity for our students, friends, and supporters to showcase their work. Submissions are encouraged by previously unpublished writers – so why not take to your keyboard or put pen to paper and share your thoughts?

Anticipated publication is during November 2023.

Rules:

Further detail can be found in our terms and conditions.

- Submit your short stories or poems of up to 1,000 words on the theme of either hope, opportunity, or empowerment (or even all three!)
- You may submit up to three pieces.
- Do not include your name, or any identifying details on the work itself, as this will be read anonymously.
- Each submission must be no more than 1000 words. There is no minimum word count.
- Titles are not included in the word count.
- Submissions will only be accepted in Microsoft Word Document (.doc or .docx).
- Please submit your work in Times New Roman, font size 12, with no line breaks between paragraphs in short stories.
- The filename of your work should be the same as your title.
- Authors must be 18+ and resident in Jersey.

Closing date: Sunday 8th October, midnight (GMT)

Submission Process:

- Enter by emailing your work as a Word document attachment to hello@recovery.je
- The subject of your email AND the name of your attachment should be the title of your work.
- In the body of your email, include your full name, telephone number, and preferred email for contact.

We look forward to receiving your work.
